Letter To The Editor

October 25, 1973

Editor
Times Virginian
Appomattox, Virginia 24522

Dear Sir:

I would like to ask your readers three questions:

1. Is Virginia a Conservative State? The answer, of course, is "Yes". By electing men like Harry Byrd, Jr., Bill Scott and Bob Daniel we have continued our fidelity to the great traditions of limited constitutional government and individual freedom which were established by our Founding Fathers.

2. Is Andrew Pickens Miller a Conservative? The answer, simply put, is "No". I have never heard even his closest supporters claim that he is. In fact, his closest supporters this year include the Virginia AFL-CIO, the Crusade for Voters and the Democratic State Central Committee, now led by Joe Fitzpatrick, George Rawlings and Ruth Harvie Charity.

3. Is Pat Echols a Conservative? There is no doubt about it. Pat's roots are deep in Virginia; Echols Hall at UVA is named for his grandfather. Since his days at U. of M. I. Pat Echols has been a dedicated Conservative. An outstanding attorney, Pat was an outspoken opponent of busing and big government in the Virginia Senate. He was a driving force in my election as Chairman of the Republican Party of Virginia, thus leading the way toward the coming realignment of Virginia Conservatives in the Republican Party.

Why, then, should Virginia Conservatives vote for Andrew Miller? There is no good reason. A few people are saying that Andrew can pull the Democratic Party back together. But, as Congressman Downing said last week, such a party must represent the "entire spectrum of political philosophy". In other words, they want Andy to be the leader of a party which includes everyone from the radical left to the conservative right - from George Rawlings to Bill Tuck.

It won't work, first of all. Henry Howell and his crowd took over the Democratic Party last year, and they aren't about to give up control to Andy Miller, or anyone else. But more important, we do not need a party which represents all philosophies - we need a strong, courageous Republican Party which will be the voice for Virginia Conservatives.

Pat Echols is strong Conservative. He will help to build that kind of party, and he will be a strong Attorney General.

Sincerely,
Richard D. Obenshain,
Chairman
Republican Party of Virginia

Planning Council Will Install Officers

The Central Virginia Health Planning Council will install new officers at its regular meeting, Monday, November 5, 1973. The meeting is scheduled for 8 p.m., Conference Room, Health Resources Center, (former Memorial Hospital) 1503 Grace St.

The main item of business scheduled for the meeting will be the review of the Lynchburg General Marshall Lodge Hospital's Application for Certificate of Need, involving major renovation and expansion. The proposed project involves additional space and service capabilities in three major departments: laboratory services, surgical suite and radiology. Work is scheduled to begin March 1, 1974, and the proposed schedule is as follows: surgical suite, Nov. 1, 1974; laboratory, Feb. 1, 1975: x-ray and cobalt therapy, Aug. 1, 1975. Full completion is scheduled for Oct. 1, 1975. The total estimated cost of the project is $2,500,000.

The Health Planning Council is a forum for the health interests of the surrounding communities. For this reason, all interested parties will have an opportunity to speak on the proposed project during the November meeting.

Amendments to the Social Security Act, Public Law 92-603 became effective Jan. 1, 1973. The new law states that any facility or sponsor which will be seeking reimbursement under Maternal and Child Health, Medicaid, and Medicare, of the Social Security Act will be required to have prior approval for the development of facilities and major services from the areawide comprehensive health planning council, in concert with the State Health Department which issues Certicates of Need.

The 1973 General Assembly passed a Certificate of Need bill, which was signed by Gov. Holton on March 19, 1973. The law requires a Certificate of Need from the State Health Commissioner prior to the beginning of any capital expenditure which exceeds $100,000, or changes the bed capacity, or substantially changes the bed capacity, or substantially changes services provided. The State Health Department in administering the above two laws will use the advice and consultation of areawide health planning councils and other involved agencies.

The Central Virginia Health Planning Council serves Planning District XI, which includes the Counties of Amherst, Appomattox, Bedford, and Campbell, and the cities of Bedford and Lynchburg.

Basic Provisions For Proven Wheat Yield Continued Under New Agricultural Act

The Agriculture and Consumer Act of 1973 continues authority for proven wheat yields with some changes in provisions for establishing such yields. This announcement was made today by James R. Ford, Jr., Chairman of the Appomattox County Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service. Mr. Ford stated that under the new act the base period for 1974 proven yields will be years 1968-72. He emphasized that the act also provides that scale tickets alone are not acceptable evidence since the evidence must include a record of the disposition made of the wheat and that 1973 production evidence must be furnished during the 1973 calendar year if such evidence is to be used for establishing proven yields for the 1975 and future years.

According to Mr. Ford, ASCS county committees, for the 1973 crop, may accept only evidence properly identified by the farm and year of production. Acceptable evidence is limited to: bin and open storage measurements, sales or warehouse receipts, and where a producer's share of the total production is known. Any requests for proven yields must be filed at the Appomattox County ASCS office by November 8, 1973.

The Pastor Speaks

THE CURE FOR WORRY

Philippians 4:6 "Be careful for nothing; but in everything by prayer and supplication with thanksgiving let your requests be known unto God."

Who was he who here said to the church at Philippi, "In nothing be anxious"? A prisoner in a Roman prison who was expecting his trial, which would probably end in death. It was this man, with all the pressure of personal sorrows weighing upon him, who, in the very crisis of his life, turned to his friends at Phillipi, who had fewer causes of anxiety than he had, and cheerfully said to them, "In nothing be anxious; but everything by prayer ..."

Paul is saying to us today, right here in Appomattox, stop you're worrying. A Christian who worries all the time is showing a distrust in God. God has not promised to do everything for us; there be some things we must do for ourselves. But He has promised to never to leave or forsake his own. He has promised to save to the uttermost all who come to Him through Jesus Christ. He has promised that all things shall work together for good to them that love Him. Our burdens, wants and necessities are not surprises toGod. But in the midst of them all we have reference to them all, He wishes us to trust Him.

Another thing we are to remember and do is talk to God about even the little things. This shows that we trust Him as one of great faith. There is nothing too small or great that we can't speak to the Father about. So, "Let your requests be known unto God." Bring your burden which can neither be borne nor shook off, and leave it at the Lord's feet in prayer. Prayer is the only real and thorough cure for worry.

"With thanksgiving" - Paul would never leave out this aspect of the Christians' life. A great many of our worries would melt away if we would sing a song of praise. Some anxieties can resist everything except thanksgiving. Someone has said, "A really thankful heart is so crowded with the sense of God's mercies that it can offer no hospitality to worry and care."

The Sunday School Lesson

Herbert C. Bradshaw
P. O. Box 1833
Durham, N. C. 26602

Comment on the International Sunday School lesson for Sunday, November 4, 1973.
Topic: Life in the Christian Community
Scripture; Romans 12:1-13; 1 Corinthians 12:1 - 13-13

Do not be conformed to this world but be transformed by the renewal of your mind, that you may prove what is the will of God, what is good and acceptable and perfect. Romans 12:2

The Scripture passages which are the background for this week's International Sunday school lesson argue cogently against the dichotomy which separates faith and practice, soul and body. Yet it is a dichotomy widely held, often productive of conduct inconsistent with Scriptural standards because by its practice a person seeks to play two roles.

A person cannot be one thing in one relationship, another thing in another relationship. Soul cannot be separated from body, any more than faith can be from practice. Paul appealed to his fellow Christians to present their bodies, which in this usage included their souls, a living sacrifice. The holy and acceptable sacrifice to God is one's entire being.

That a person cannot be divided is illustrated in a conversation between Dr. Robert Lewis Dabney, the distinguished Presbyterian preacher and theologian and one of his elders, Samuel C. Anderson, an eminent lawyer. A student at Hampden-Sydney College murdered another in 1857. There were witnesses to the anger which led to the murder; there were witnesses to the fatal stabbing. The accused employed as his attorney Mr. Anderson, who by skillful stressing of the code of honor won acquittal for the defendant.

Shortly after the verdict Dr. Dabney confronted Mr. Anderson and expressed surprise that an elder in his church would have so thwarted the administration of justice that a murderer would go free. "That was Anderson, the lawyer, not Anderson, the elder," the attorney blandly replied. "And pray tell me," Dr. Dabney shot back, "where Anderson the elder will be when Anderson the lawyer is sizzling in hell?"

To escape conformity to the world and to experience that transformation a renewal of the mind in commitment to God brings about respect of sacrifice of the entire being. Yet unless this is done, there will be a divided person who will therefore not be a real person. So it is with faith. True faith is not content to rest with faith alone but is constrained to express faith in action.

Paul uses the body to symbolize the fellowship of believers, the Church. A church dispute, in Corinth, over who had the greatest spiritual gift and which gift was the greatest, gave him the opportunity to show that as the body required different parts and organs to perform different but essential functions to living, so the various gifts of the Holy Spirit are essential to the functioning of the Church. God uses the diversity of human talents to serve Him. Because to serve, the question of relative importance is insignificant. Some may serve in conspicuous places, others in less conspicuous but no less essential ways. The janitor who provides a neat and comfortable place of worship serves as well as the minister who leads the worship.

When the term spiritual gift is applied to an individual talent, there is great diversity of gifts. all of which can be used to the great end of advancing the kingdom of God on earth. There are certain spiritual gifts, however, which all believers may enjoy. One of them is the greatest of all spiritual gifts, and that is love. How the spiritual gift of love works is beautifully described by Paul in 1 Corinthians 13. Faith and hope are spiritual gifts which all believers may enjoy, but the love of which Paul writes is greater than these for it transcends into action. Love is the spiritual gift which makes all other spiritual gifts meaningful and effective.
